

Module View type

The module view shows how the system is decomposed into implementation units and how the functionality is allocated to these units. The layers show how modules are encapsulated and structured. The layers represent the "allowed-to-use" relation. The following sections describe the module view using Decomposition and Uses Style.